

Amrik Dharival

Technical Graduate at Consett

I've had many development opportunities at Greencore

As I completed my master's degree at University of Nottingham, I knew the next career step for me was to embark on a degree placement within a food manufacturing business.

I saw the Technical Graduate programme at Greencore, and this programme really stood out to me as there was the opportunity to rotate across different sites and experience a variety of manufacturing processes.

Since joining Greencore in 2022, I've had many development opportunities, these have been a blend of on-the-job experiences, as well as formal learning which has increased my knowledge and confidence.

As part of my programme rotation, I've had exposure to many different roles within Technical, from Hygiene to Technical Services, and so much more. All of this experience is helping me to shape my career, and there's so much development on offer at Greencore.

I've met some brilliant colleagues at Greencore who have been very supportive and encouraged me to actively drive my own development.

What's been great is having regular conversations with my line manager and identifying areas which I want to focus on, and together we build a development plan centred around my next steps and what goals I want to achieve.

I'm now a mentor to one of the other Technical Degree Apprentice, I'm sharing my knowledge and experience that I've gained with others. The process has shown me how much I've developed personally, and it's hugely rewarding to support someone else as they start on their career with Greencore.

As you consider a career with us, my advice is to make the most of the opportunities that come your way, as you develop your career, be open to exploring new experiences to support your development.

