Gender & Ethnicity Pay Gap Report 2024

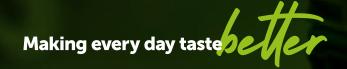

Overview

At Greencore, we remain committed to creating a culture where our people can be themselves, fulfil their potential and are treated fairly.

Since launching our Inclusion & Diversity strategy, we have helped colleagues understand how important it is that we understand the demographic make-up of our organisation. This includes encouraging colleagues to make sure their personal data is accurate. An upgrade to our core people system last year further enabled colleagues to review and update their demographic information. For the reporting period to 5 April 2024 whereby c.13,000 colleagues were included, disclosure rates for both gender and ethnicity demographic data were 100%.

Our commitment to fair and equitable pay is guided by our reward principles, the first of which is striving for fairness and consistency. Our median gender pay gap across UK entities is 5.0% remaining stable since our last report. Our median ethnicity pay gap is 6.1%, reflecting a 1.4% improvement since we first reported these figures in 2023.

While we are ahead of the UK and industry median gender pay gap figures*, we recognise there is more to do. We remain committed to attracting, retaining, and developing a diverse workforce that is reflective of the UK population and the communities we operate in. Over the past year, we have continued to deliver work to support this, advancing our inclusion strategy and improving the working environment for women. We continue to enhance our policies, processes, and ways of working to drive further progress, while reviewing our recruitment, retention, and development activities to support our commitment to narrowing pay gaps.

Our median gender pay gap is

Our Purpose and the Greencore Way

We continue to work for a future where our people and our business thrive sustainably, where what we do makes things better every day, and where better food and better relationships make a better business and a better world for us all.

We don't just want to stay steady. We want to grow and lead the way. We're currently strengthening our core – what we already do well – and at the same time focusing on growing and expanding. And underpinning all our strategic plans is doing it the Greencore Way. We like to say the Greencore Way is who we are and how we win. It's what makes us better today and helps us grow as we look to the future. It is built on five differentiators – People at the Core, Lasting Partnerships, Great Food, Delivery Excellence and Sustainable Choices.

Putting our People at the Core

We put our people at the core of everything we do, their commitment to our purpose is vital to our long-term success. We are dedicated to; making sure everyone works in a safe, supportive environment where they can be themselves, providing great colleague benefits and giving opportunities for everyone to develop and grow their career with us.

We remain deeply committed to investing in our colleagues and providing an inclusive work culture where everyone can realise their potential through continuous learning, growth, and development. This supports greater social mobility, equality, and career progression.

The size, scope and reach of our business means we can offer a range of diverse opportunities for our colleagues, from entry career routes, through to apprenticeships, coaching and mentoring and formal and structured professional development.

We remain committed to treating all colleagues equally and ensuring they are given the same opportunities.

At the end of FY24, 39% of all colleagues were female. Our male-to-female percentage ratio is 50:50 at Board level, 86:14 at Group Executive level, and 67:33 at the Group Executive Team and direct report level combined. Colleagues from ethnic minorities currently make up 31.7% of our colleague population, having grown each year since we launched our strategy back in FY19-20. The majority of our ethnic minority colleagues work in team member and supervisory roles across our manufacturing facilities.

Gender pay differences can be due to several factors. Our gender pay gap is influenced by the demographics of our business. This includes:

- A higher number of men than women across the business in total, which is reflected in the higher number of men than women in most of our pay quartiles
- A higher proportion of men than women in shift-based roles, which attract premium rates of pay.

Ethnicity pay differences can also be due to several factors. Our ethnicity pay gap is influenced by the demographics of our business. This includes:

- A higher number of white than ethnic minority colleagues across the business in total, which is reflected in the higher number of white than ethnic minority colleagues in all our pay quartiles
- A lack of representation of ethnically diverse colleagues across more senior management and support grades.

We're continuing to take action

We continue to make positive progress in inclusion and diversity, with colleague voices at the heart of our efforts. Gender and ethnicity remain key focus areas of our inclusion and diversity strategy.

In FY24, feedback from surveys and listening groups has provided valuable insights into colleagues' experiences at Greencore, helping us strengthen our approach to inclusion and diversity.

Over the past 12 months, our reverse mentoring programme with the Institute of Grocery Distribution (IGD) and the crossindustry initiative with Diversity in Grocery have amplified colleague voices and helped our leaders better understand the barriers faced by underrepresented groups.

After successfully launching our Menopause policy in 2023, we further enhanced support for women by marking Menopause Awareness Week and providing colleagues access to our own podcast and webinar. We have also trained around 180 colleagues as Menopause Champions, equipping them with the knowledge, skills and resources to offer local support to those affected by menopause. In 2025, we will expand our benefits for colleagues who are parents.

In addition to improving inclusion for women, our gender catalyst group (ERG), sponsored by our CEO, has helped us identify ways to better support men across the business. Through surveys, listening groups, and interviews, we've raised awareness and educated colleagues about the gender spectrum, with a particular focus on the trans community.

We accelerated investment in our Licence to Recruit programme, with nearly 500 managers trained to promote balance in our hiring decisions through a consistent selection process across the business.

Eighty senior leaders participated in a learning programme designed to enhance their understanding of race, racial bias, and how to tackle racial inequality, as well as to foster conversations about race and become allies.

In our bi-annual People at the Core engagement survey, we were pleased to see improvements in colleagues' experiences of inclusion across all 11 measures for the third consecutive year.

In 2024, we were ranked in the Women in Work Index, which analyses 400 of the largest UK companies across 24 sectors to assess progress and create future-proofed workplaces that uphold high standards of gender equity.

We remain committed to building a culture that encourages and embraces all differences, where every one of our c.13,000 colleagues can thrive equally. Increasing representation, particularly for women and ethnic minority colleagues, is a priority, and we've expanded several leadership-level targets this year to track our progress in these key areas.

We've focused on attracting greater diversity by improving accessibility and celebrating career stories. The 'Work With Greencore' section on our website aims to remove barriers for prospective candidates by sharing key policies, colleague stories, and showcasing life within the business.

We continue to invest in colleague progression, expanding our offerings this year with the addition of the Stepping into Management programme. This initiative helps new managers take crucial first steps into leadership, with a particular emphasis on supporting the progression of women.

Our investment in team leaders continues with our award-winning Line Coordinator Framework, with 600 colleagues currently on the programme or having graduated to date. Throughout 2024, we also maintained our focus on development centres for emerging operational leaders. As a result, our internal hire ratio remains strong at 40%, and colleague engagement continues to rise.

Additionally, we've supported underrepresented groups outside of Greencore through our participation in the co-op levy share, providing apprenticeship opportunities to underrepresented individuals in the communities we operate, alongside investing £500,000 of our levy fund.

We continue to make sure our performance and talent assessment process is balanced, offering personal support for high-potential colleagues, encouraging conversations around career aspirations, and enabling everyone to have a personal development plan. Our robust performance talent calibration approach involves reviewing the performance rating distribution across the business to ensure all colleagues are appraised and rewarded fairly and consistently.

What is a gender pay gap?

A gender pay gap is a measure of the difference in average pay of men and women across a business. It's different to an equal pay comparison which would involve direct comparison of two people or groups of people carrying out work of equal value. Businesses are required to report on the following gender pay figures:

- The mean (average) gender pay gap. This is calculated by adding all female colleagues' hourly rates of pay together and dividing by the total number of women and adding all male colleagues' hourly rates of pay together and dividing by the total number of men. The mean pay gap is then calculated as the average male rate minus the average female rate divided by the average male rate
- The median gender pay gap. The median is the mid-point when the hourly rates of pay of all colleagues are ordered from highest to lowest, or vice versa. The median pay gap is then calculated as the median male rate minus the median female rate divided by the median male rate
- A breakdown of workforce earning distribution by quartile. The Lower Quartile contains the 25% lowest hourly rates of pay and Upper Quartile includes the 25% highest hourly rates of pay. This provides an overview of earning distribution between men and women across the business
- The percentage of women and men receiving bonuses
- The mean gender bonus gap
- The median gender bonus gap

Both mean and median gender bonus gaps are based on the actual bonus payments received in the 12 months prior to the snapshot date, rather than on hourly rates of pay. Every relevant business must provide the same data working to the same methodology, allowing comparisons between different employers.

We have used the same methodology to calculate both our gender pay gap and ethnicity pay gap figures.
